BIG VOTE CAST TO ELECT DON HALE TRUSTEE

DONALD HALE, one-time pupil of Sunset school and long-time Carmelite, was elected to the position of Sunset school trustee in the contest of last Friday, around which much local interest had centered. The victory was decisive, Mr. Hale receiving three votes to every one cast for the nearest contender, Mrs. Ethel P. Young of Pebble Beach. Miss Alma Kuehl, the third candidate, received six votes. A total of 754 votes was cast, only 72 less than were cast in the recent city council election, and 15 more votes than the total in the firehouse bond election last spring. This indicates conclusively that school affairs occupy an exceptionally large share of community interest in Carmel, as contrasted with other places, where school election day may come and go with many citizens unaware of the fact.

The new trustee who takes the place to be vacated by the expiration of the four-year term of E. H. Ewig, will be installed at the regular meeting of the board in July. Until this year, trustees were elected in March and took office in April, just in time to take part in the board's heaviest duties of the year, preparing the budget for the following year, setting salaries, electing teachers and other matters of comparable importance. It was felt that this worked a great injustice on new trustees, requiring them to take on duties for which they had insufficient time to prepare, and this is believed to be the reason behind the change in state school law, causing the elections to occur three months later. Therefore, by the time Mr. Hale takes office, much of the work of preparing for the new school term will have been completed.

Leaders Elected for Girl Scouts

At a meeting last Friday afternoon at the Girl Scout house in Carmel, attended by all active Carmel Scout leaders and other interested members of the community, organization of the Carmel regional Scout committee was effected, after delay of many weeks caused by dissension within the organization. Action of the peninsula Scout council last week in re-electing Mrs. Ralph Coote to the position of Scout commissioner from which she had resigned, and in naming other members of the council, some of whom had resigned in sympathy with Mrs. Coote, paved the way for the return to Scouting of the experienced leaders who also resigned about three weeks ago, and for electing a committee acceptable to the women who have worked in Scouting over a period of years.

Miss Clara G. Hinds was made chairman of the regional committee, with Mrs. Herbert John Morse as secretary. Mrs. Ernest Bixler is chairman of the house committee; Mrs. Wendy Prince, field chairman; Miss Ruth Huntington, who was elected deputy commissioner for the peninsula last week, is chairman of badges and awards; Mrs. T. W. Van Ess, chairman of the committee at large; Mrs. Frank Townsend and Mrs. Frank Hatton, chairmen for the Leaders club; and Mrs. Robert Stanton, chairman of finance.

Continuing Responsibilities of Women Voters League Stressed at Final Meeting for This Year

ACROSS SECTION of this year's major activities of the Monterey County League of Women Voters was given at the final session held Wednesday at the beautiful Carmel Valley home of Miss Orre B. Haseltine, through reports given by League officers and group chairmen; while a vision of the continuing activities and wide scope of the work of the National League was projected through reports on the recent national convention, given by three California delegates: Mrs. Carl L. Voss, Monterey county president; Mrs. Warner Clark, state chairman of government and education; and Mrs. Lovell Langstroth, state chairman of government and foreign policy. The latter two women are both of San Francisco. Not the least important or vivid portion of the day's program was an amusing skit in the afternoon, demonstrating just how the League of Women Voters has brought pressure to bear on politicians in demonstrating their earnest intention to secure a better government personnel.

Much more like a miniature convention than a simple "club meeting" were the events of the day, which seethed with vitality, and were well calculated to give a feeling of the intense earnestness, the well-directed activity, the pertinent information already amassed, the sincere drive for more knowledge, which infuse the program of the organized women voters. Mrs. Voss was in tip-top form, her customary vivacity re-enforced by her contact with the national group.

Reports by Mrs. T. G. Emmons, membership chairman—202 paid-up members; Mrs. B. D. Marx Greene, treasurer—a healthy financial condition, with a comfortable balance after carrying out the year's expensive work; and Mrs. Mast Wolfson, finance chairman—next year's budget carefully balanced; all indicated the flourishing condition of the League.

Mrs. Voss then reported on the multitudinous activities of the president's year, mentioning, in addition to her numerous personal duties, high-spots of the season: the state convention here last October, the use of broadcasting in disseminating the League's ideals and program; the monthly luncheon meetings each addressed by an outstanding speaker; the campaign to arouse interest in better government personnel; the dinner meeting specially devoted to this campaign, and attended by many men as well as League members; various all-day meetings devoted to working out programs for the study groups.

Roy Fraties Made New Police Officer By Chief Norton

Roy Praties has been appointed to the Carmel police department. A resolution of the council passed Wednesday evening confirmed the action of Police Chief Robert A. Norton in naming the new officer, with the understanding that this is a special positon created for the summer only. The officer's salary was fixed at $135 a month, which was explained to be at the regular rate of $150, minus the 10 per cent depression pay cut by which all city employes are still affected.

Luncheon Served for Senior Class

On June 4, at Monterey High school a luncheon was held for the senior class.

The members of the faculty who spoke to the seniors were J. R. McKillop, Miss Gertrude Rendtorff, W. Edwards and J. G. Darling. The students who spoke were Harlan Wilder, Gordon Bain, Mary Ann Harrington, Mary Hobson, Robert R. Davis and Lucille King.

The speakers were introduced by Jean Stewart, president of the senior class, who hails from the Carmel Valley. Acting yell leaders were Delos Bagby and Bob Davis.

The luncheon was prepared by Mrs. Hughes and underclassmen served the seniors.

MARIONS ENTERTAIN

Mrs. George F. Marion Jr., and her daughter are now visiting the senior George Marions, and the younger George, who has carved an enviable niche for himself in Hollywood, was here last week-end and is expected this week-end. One of the ace scenarists, George Jr., who made the transition from the "silents" to the "talkies" without apparent perturbation, is a sort of free-lance play doctor, often called in to whip into shape scripts before which whole staffs of luminaries have fallen by the wayside. His most recent success is "Metropolitan" the Tibbett starring vehicle, in which George Marion Sr. played the orchestra leader.

NIGHT BONUS PAY-OFF

For the benefit of veterans, Postmaster Irene Cator will keep the post office open nights between 7 and 9 o'clock Monday and Tuesday. Members of the Legion will be on duty to help identify applicants.

Pageant Forms Final Program as 57 Graduate From Sunset

GRADUATION exercises for 57 eighth grade pupils were held at Sunset school last evening, in the form of a pageant, "The "Builders." As a commencement program this was a departure from customary proceedure, as ideas usually expressed by class members in formal speeches were embodied in the pageant which combined effective verse choir recitation, individual deliveries, tableau scenes and symbolic movement. Effective costumes, lighting and music beautifully and inspiringly unified the various forms of expression.

Theme idea of the pageant was taken from Longfellow's "Our todays and yesterdays are the blocks from which we build." It was written by members of the eighth grade, under the direction of Anna Marie Baer. Certain members of the group developed costume and lighting effects; others designed the tableaux and created the symbolic movement. All members of the class participated in the presentation.

The idea underlying the pageant was that past civilizations have contributed various gifts to the present day, in the fields of science, invention, industry, government, religion and education, and that the duty of each individual today is to use these gifts in a worthy way, thus building a better civilization for tomorrow.

A brief intermission followed the presentation, during which the orchestra played several selections under the direction of Madeline Currey. The class then appeared in traditional white graduation costumes, a farewell tribute to the school was pronounced by one of the students, the graduates received their diplomas and marched from the stage while the orchestra played a recessional.

Tirzah Gates Weds Nicholas Roosevelt

In a simply appointed wedding at the Pasadena home of her mother, Mrs. Egbert James Gates, Miss Tirzah Gates was united in marriage last Friday afternoon to Nicholas Roosevelt, first cousin of the late great T. R., and distant relative of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Miss Gates, niece of Dr. Amelia L. Gates of Carmel, is widely known here, having lived here for various brief intervals, and Mr. Roosevelt has also been a Carmel visitor, most recently about six months ago. Mrs. Rhys Williams was the only Carmelite attending the wedding, to which about a score of guests were bidden.

The only attendant of the bridal party was Mrs. Fritz Zwicky of San Marino, sister of the bride. She was given in marriage by her brother, Freeman E. Gates of Taft, and the marriage lines were read by Rev. C. Rankin Barnes, formerly of Pasadena, now of San Diego.

Tea was served to the bridal party and guests following the ceremony, and Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt left immediately for a wedding trip through the southwestern states, after which they will go east to make their home at Hewlett, L. I.

berations from all this activity?" she asked in conclusion. "May they be likened to bees buzzing in a fur hat, or to the sharp report of a gun? Are we just mulling around, or are we going somewhere?"

For the government and economic welfare study group, Miss Helen Davis, the chairman, reported on the year's work; the study of the history of money, and of the Social Security bill, presentation of Dr. Ira B. Cross and Samuel J. Leask as speakers for general meetings; the survey, in the interests of the consumer, of "What's in a can?" and a talk on consumer cooperatives.

World peace and tariff, immigration, neutrality, the new nationalism, and international economic relations are some of the topics studied by the government and foreign policy group, reported Mrs. Russell Scott, the chairman. Lieut.-Commander Stuart Bryant was presented at a general meeting, to discuss "Changing Aspects of World Power."

As legislative chairman, Mrs. Joseph Schoeninger gave a resume of the various timely matters which she has followed this year, reporting from time to time to the League, and amassing data which has also been used by other organizations. Neutrality measures, the third naval treaty, the Copeland food and drug bill, the bill placing postmasters under civil service, the Social Security bill and the law requiring re-registration in California are among the measures studied.

As her report, Miss Emma Waldvogel, chairman of government and the legal status of women recommended the booklet, "The Legal Status of Women in California." This section, together with that on government and education, of which Mrs. J. P. Sandholdt is chairman, and Mrs. Kent Clark's section of government and child welfare were not organized into study groups this year, as the League has concentrated on three of the six possible study groups.

Some time in July, before the primary election, the League will call a meeting at which local candidates will have an opportunity to speak, Mrs. Voss announced. This is in line with the League's policy of hearing candidates but not endorsing them, whereas measures may be endorsed after careful study. Again emphasized was the strictly non-partisan character of the League; so definite a policy that members of the board of directors are asked not to participate actively in partisan campaigning unless they first secure leave of absence from the board.

Following a delicious buffet luncheon served at small tables in the garden, the meeting reassembled indoors to hear national convention highlights. Mrs. Clark stressed particularly the attention paid to "protection of academic freedom as basic to sound education," listed as a "continuing responsibility" in next year's program of the government and education department, nationally. With the objective of "showing the everyday voter his place in the educational program" this department stressed that it is the duty of boards of education to attend to the sound financing of school districts, and to choose efficient personnel, duly recognizing that the work of arranging curriculum and fixing salaries should be in the hands of experts.

Sentiment of the national department was adverse to teachers' oaths of allegiance, the speaker said; not because it is a bad or undesirable thing for teachers to take such oaths, she emphasized, but because of the vicious use which "unprincipled politicians or misguided patriots" might make of the fact that teachers had taken the oath. In some sections of the country, teachers have been intimidated against even mentioning governmental systems different from that operating in this country, lest this be interpreted as a breach of the loyalty oath, and educators have refused to sign the pledge cards of the League, directed against the spoils system and for a career service in government, because they feared that this too might violate the oath, as "against the present form of our government."

Mrs. Langstroth discussed three items nominated "for emphasis" on next year's program of the League: "participation in the collective system for the prevention of war; including implementation of the Pact of Paris, and membership in the Permanent Court of International Justice and the League of Nations;" "A foreign policy of this country, as a non-belligerent nation, which will not obstruct the efforts of other nations to achieve peace"; "Downward revision of tariffs through reciprocal trade agreements".

The meeting then moved out into the pleasant garden again for the final event of the day, which combined a report on the better personnel campaign with the report of the government and its operation department, of which Mrs. Howard Walters is chairman. Three stern-faced gentlemen (Carl Voss, Joseph Schoeninger and Peter Burk) were seated at a table to constitute a Court of Public Inquiry, instructed to "investigate" the League as a "political pressure group." Their objective was to discover the Ethiopian in the wood-pile, the axe to grind, of this organization of women which seemed so determined to do away with the time-honored spoils system. Miss Ann Hazen was the bored court clerk who read the charge against the League, swore in the witnesses who made a most convincing plea of the League's complete disinterestedness in all its efforts. The witnesses included Mrs. Robert Stanton, who trundled in a wheelbarrow load of newspaper clippings and other literature, as "Exhibit A" to show just how effective and far-reaching had been the better personnel campaign, of which she is chairman; Mrs. David Ball, Mrs. Peter Burk, Mrs. Wendy Prince, Mrs. Howard Walters and Mrs. Joseph Schoeninger.

Mrs. Voss brought back the idea for the skit from the convention; Mrs. Prince wrote the skit, localizing it most humorously and effectively.

Efficiency Rules at New Council Sessions and Meetings Are Short

COLD blooded efficiency now rules the actions of Carmel city council to such an extent that to extract "color" from its businesslike sessions is practically impossible. The business of the sessions is lined up in advance, and in official form, passes before the august board members in one-two-three order. For that reason, the Wednesday evening session of the council, adjourned from last week, 15 minutes late in starting, was terminated 45 minutes later, at 9:45. Avowed intention of Mayor Everett Smith is to insure meetings so orderly—and so somnolent—that "you reporters won't even have to come around; you can just glance over the minutes afterwards!" However, Carmel is unpredictable and the best laid plans of mice and men, etc. Sooner or later some outsider will toss a bombshell into the orderly proceedings, and the reporters can awake from their slumbers.

About half the meeting was given over to reading of communications about trees. Mrs. Eleanor W. Yates asked for the trimming of a hedge of acacias in front of her home on Casanova, as they obscure her view of the street. This was turned over to the commissioner of streets with power to act. The commissioner of streets will investigate a pine tree, said to have been weakened by the cutting of roots, in the vicinity of Mission and Thirteenth. Mrs. Jessie Graham requested its removal. Richard A. Platt requested the trimming of branches obscuring his driveway at Carmelo and Seventh. This was referred to the street commissioner with power to act.

By resolution, the council memorialized the Board of Supervisors to approve the realignment of Rio Road in the vicinity of the mission, with a view to reducing dangerous curves and to provide parking space near the historic structure.

The salary of T. J. Hefling, deputy collector of taxes and licenses, who has been doing a full-time job for half-time pay, was advanced to $135 a month.

An ordinance authorizing the city to accept the deed to Block 155, the gift of Del Monte Properties company for tennis courts, passed second reading. Councilman Thoburn suggested the advisability of members of the council being present at the final session of the water rate hearing instituted by the three cities of the peninsula, now several years old, scheduled for June 25 at Monterey city hall.

Merit System In Personnel of Government Urged by Women Voters

TAKING adventage of presidential election year, the League of Women Voters is making a doubly concerted effort to induce major political parties to take cognizance of one of its most important objectives; establishing a merit system in government personnel, and abolishing the spoils system. The use of group pressure to further a program which has no axe to grind, but is inspired by a sincere effort toward better public administration is demonstrated by the serious attention which legislatons are giving to the demands of this active and well-informed group of women. It is the objective of the League to have its Public Personnel Plank written into the platforms of the national parties.

Members of the California delegation to the National Republican convention each received before leaving for Cleveland a copy of the plank proposed by the National League of Women Voters. Representatives of the League will seek a hearing before the resolutions committees at both party conventions.

According to Mrs. Paul Eliel, president of the California League, members of the Republican delegation with whom League officers talked before they left for the eastward trek, expressed themselves very strongly in favor of such a plank.

As indicative of public demand for such a plank, a truck arrived in Cleveland, June 8, loaded with over a quarter of a million signed cards which petition the parties to incorporate in their platforms a plank pledging themselves to abolish the spoils system and to establish the merit principle of appointment in the interest of efficient public service, and other thousands are arriving daily direct from various states. Petition cards have been signed by voters throughout the nation as a part of the campaign to extend the merit principle of government appointments upon which the National League of Women Voters is concentrating.

"It took years for women to win the suffrage. It may take years to accomplish this present objective, but we shall win in the end," declared Miss Marguerite Wells, national president, recently. Recent surveys of public opinion indicate that the League will have the cooperation of hundreds of thousands of public-minded citizens, regardless of party affiliation, toward accomplishing its objective.

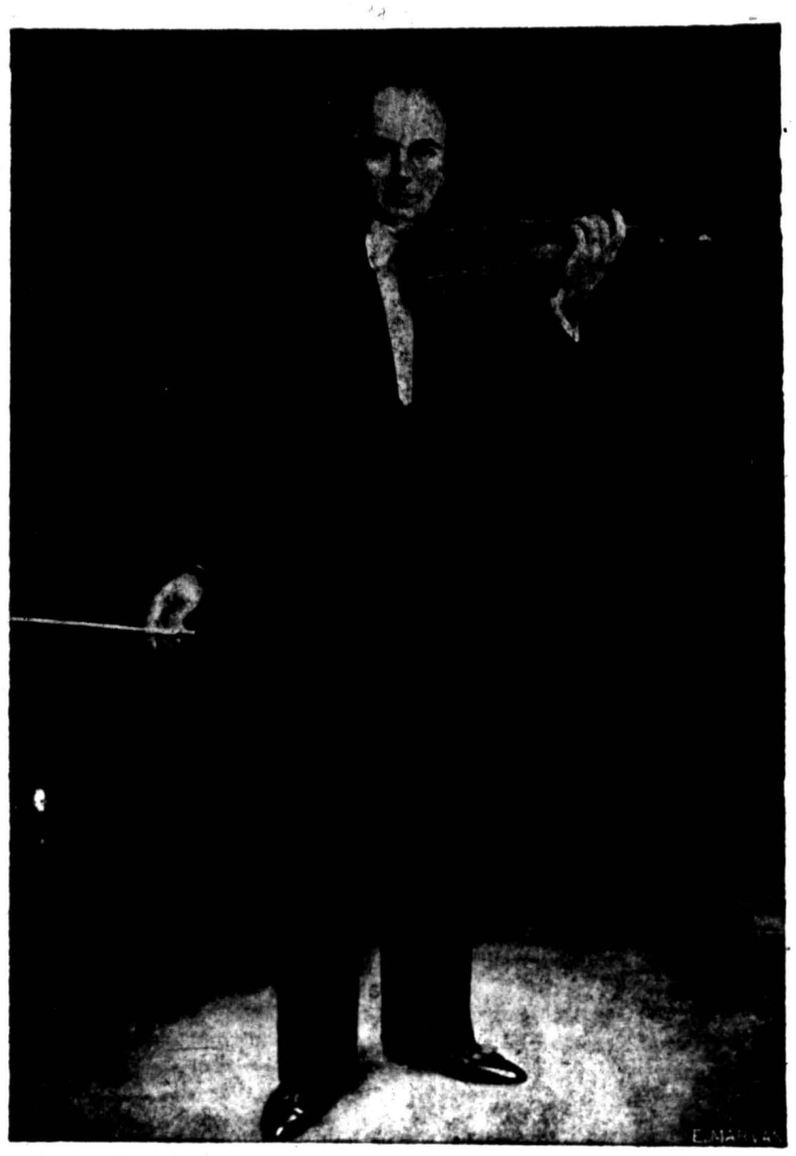
Painting of Kubelik By His Daughter



Noted Violinist, Now Carmelite, Appears in Concert Here Tomorrow

THE long-awaited concert by Kubelik, world-famous violinist and now proudly acclaimed as a Carmelite, is to be presented tomorrow evening at Sunset auditorium by the Denny-Watrous management. His concert, in which he will be accompanied by his son, Rafael Kubelik, includes the grandeur and beauty of Handel, the fireworks and transcendental sparkle of Paganini, and a Kubelik composition, "Phantasia," here played for the first time in America.

The accompanying portrait of the master violinist is a reproduction of one painted in oils by Clara Kubelik, his daughter. Together with 70 other paintings, it was exhibited in her own one-man show in Prague, a show opened by the president of the Academy. She is a portrait painter of established reputation, and has painted 50 or more social celebrities. This portrait of her father, life size, hangs now in her studio.

Clara's sister, Johanna, who is one year older, is also a painter, and now has an exhibit in Vienna which has won very favorable press comment.

The program for tomorrow evening, at 8:30 at Sunset auditorium, includes: Goldmark, Concerto in A minor; Handel, Sonata, E major; Bach, Gavotte (for violin alone) and Praeludium; Kubelik, Phantasia; Schuman, Abendlied; Paganini, Caprice (for violin alone) and Campanella.

SCHOOL NURSE RE-ELECTED

Mrs. Pearl Atter, school nurse for the past year, was re-elected to this position at the regular monthly meeting of Sunset school board of trustees the evening of June 4. Haskell Warren and Floyd Harber, custodians, were also re-elected. Routine busines soccupied the remainder of the session.

Speaking in behalf of the Scottsboro boys held in an Alabama jail on an allegedly unfounded charge of rape, Dean William Pickens, eminent Negro orator and field organizer for the N. A. A. C. Mr. Pickens will appear at the First Baptist church, Fourth and Laurel streets, Pacific Grove, at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Mr. Picken's lecture tour is sponsored by the local and national N. A. A. C. Monterey Union High Class Play Brings Out Talents of Students

By THELMA B. MILLER

WITH more evidence of uniform excellence than most amateur casts muster, the senior class of Monterey Union High School put on its annual class play in Sunset auditorium Friday evening. The play was "The Family Upstairs" by Harry Delf, and under Miss Ann Norwood, dramatics instructor, Marjorie Lockwood carried the responsibility as student director.

The young people presented a gallery of vivid, effective characters, and handled a deal of rather complicated stage business exceptionally well. Unfortunately, they were far from sure of their lines, either through nervousness, insufficient preparation, or lack of facilities at the high school for the type of rehearsal which coordinates lines with business. There was little awkwardness or uncertainty so far as the "acting" went, and after some of the longest stage waits on record, when complete silence prevailed for agonizing moments, it was really remarkable the way one or another of the cast bravely picked up a line somewhere and went on. A less courageous group of youngsters might well have blown higher than kites after such interludes; many an adult cast has been demoralized by less.

No more zestful consumption of food has ever been seen on any stage than that in which the Heller family sat down to a well-laden dinner table. As the garrulous, tactless and frankly mercenary mother of a trying family, Florence Lockwood dominated the stage almost continually, and very effectively. As a slightly obnoxious brat of 10 or 11, Patricia Selbicky turned in a remarkably effective characterization, practising her piano lesson remorselessly through some of the tenser moments of the drama. Vincent Dorney personified a cocky and rather useless 17-year-old so well that he should be spotted for future adult shows, and Bernard McMenamin acquitted himself well in a trying role as the querulous father father of the family. Gravely sweet and appealing was Beulah Beach as the older sister, and chief victim of her family's maladjustments. Harlan Wilder was the suitor who in spite of the handicaps imposed by the mother's over-anxiety to see her daughter married off, was the Prince Charming who rescued the charming Louise from spinsterhood. Dorothy Wayman was good in a brief monologue which spilled the beans so far as the suitor was concerned, and Jean Stewart appeared as his mother who helped to save the situation for the two young people. Stanley Clay, youngest member of the Carmel fire department, played "little brother" to Harlan Wilder.

Incidental music of outstanding excellence was provided by the high school orchestra directed by Franklin A. Young.

HOME DECORATION TALK

Miss D'Arcy Gaw, designer and decorator formerly of New York, now residing in Carmel, will present a talk on decoration of the home at a silver tea to be given by All Saints Parish Guild next Thursday afternoon, June 18, at 2 o'clock, at the Parish hall. The affair is open to the public.

Red Cross Activities Told

AFTER an inspection of the new tuberculosis unit of the county hospital last week, Mrs. Karl Rendtorff and Miss Leslie King of Carmel chapter, American Red Cross, stated that they were very well pleased with the manner in which ward patients are being handled. There is frequent need for Red Cross to send patients to the institution.

At the regular monthly meeting of Red Cross executive committee Tuesday, the report of Treasurer Halle disclosed that $275.52 was expended by the local chapter in May. This covered milk, hospitalization, groceries, dental work. Balance in treasury including disaster relief fund is $2309.77. As far as the chapter knows, not a single person has gone hungry during recent weeks and the clothing department has been busy supplying the needs of those in distress.

Milk bottle collections amounted to $18.50, showing that people are not forgetting the undernourished children.

Col. Theodore Taylor, chairman of the disaster relief committee, has completed his various assignments and will shortly call a meeting of committee heads for consultation. Pacific Grove fire department will start another Red Cross first aid class in Carmel.

Owing to vacation time it was decided to issue the call for the next quarterly meeting of Red Cross board upon Aug. 12.

Art Subjects In Summer Curricula

With two nationally known artists supplementing the University's own art department faculty members, the U. C. L. A. summer session will offer a comprehensive course in art subjects, according to J. Harold Williams, dean of the session.

Onestus Uzzell, whose canvases have attracted wide attention during recent spring exhibitions, will go to the University in order to give courses in The Understanding of Art, Drawing and Painting, and Advanced Life. Another distinguished visitor on the art faculty will be Richard Joseph Neutra, A. I. A., recently appointed architect of the new Emerson Junior high school, West Los Angeles.

Instructors drawn from the University's own art faculty will include Louise Pinckney Sooy, associate professor of fine arts, Annie C. B. McPhail, and Natalie White.

Of particular interest to teachers in the elementary grades will be special U. C. L. A. summer session courses in Industrial Arts under Miss White and Miss Helen Sue Read, rural primary supervisor in the Los Angeles county schools.

The U. C. L. A. summer session opens June 27 and closes Aug. 7 with the large majority of classes open to everyone interested, regardless of previous academic training.

NEW WRINKLES IN BUILDING

AIR conditioning has been defined as the science or process of maintaining any desired combination of temperature, purity, moisture content and air motion within an enclosure. Unless a plant does all these things, it is not an air conditioner, and has no right to the name. In summer, the objective is to lower the temperature, lower the humidity, and produce air-movement. In winter, you must raise the temperature, increase the humidity, and produce only slight air movement. Heating, as well as cooling and dehumidification are accomplished with compactly-designed coils; the humidification is accomplished by a needle-like water spray, impingeing against a target which atomizes the water so that it may easily be absorbed by the thirsty air. The air passes through a filter which removes all dust.

The first small plants designed for domestic use treated each room as a unit, and were prohibitively expensive. It was impracticable, in most cases, to think of air-conditioning the whole house, and there was the same disadvantage to which we are accustomed through our habit of "economizing" by warming the living-room only, and then feeling an uncomfortable draft whenever a door is opened from the cold part of the house; an inefficient and expensive system. Air-conditioning as perfected for the small Carmel home means a uniform temperature for the whole house, at about the maintainance cost now required to keep the living-room alone comfortable.

The plant occupies a space about 26 inches by 28 inches and is six feet five inches high and can be installed in a basement or centrally located closet, is as trim and attractive in appearance as the new refrigerators and kitchen ranges. The registers into each room, through which the warmed, humidified air passes, are about a foot long and six inches wide; attractive metal grills,. more economical in space requirements and more unobtrusive in apearance, than any other heating device. They operate by gas, and—the P. G. & E. may not like this—consume less gas in heating the whole house than the average floor furnace.

For new construction, Hugh Comstock, the builder, usually plans a special centrally located closet which accommodates not only the air-conditioning plant but the water heater as well, so that all the utility equipment is centrally and conveniently located, and craftily concealed. There is the added safety factor that possible sources of fire danger are located together, in a fire resistant closet which safeguards the rest of the house. This does away with the need for a basement for the installation of a heating plant, as basements are impracticable in some areas in Carmel, because of hard-pan and rock near the surface which make excavation costs prohibitive.

Central heating plants for houses already built have in most cases been considered impracticable, due to the large amount of space required by most plants, and the necessity to tear the house to pieces to install it. The efficient compactness of the new air-conditioning plant, however, and the ease with which it is installed, means that almost any home can accommodate it with slight alterations. Its price is so low that anyone using any form of artificial heat other than a fireplace can afford it.

LEGION POSTS TO CELEBRATE

Beginners Class In Dramatics Is Opened In Adult Stage Seminar

A CLASS in dramatic fundamentals, specially geared to beginners, but offering much of interest to experienced amateur players, was inaugurated Monday evening by Lucy Neely McLane, as part of the work of the adult education dramatic seminar, which will continue to meet at Sunset school one evening each week throughout the summer, according to Clay Otto, the coordinator. Projects already in progress will be carried on into the summer term, but Miss McLane's work will supplement that of various groups working on play production. It is designed for the prospective community theater player who does not want to have the hallmark of the hopeless amateur.

The objective of the course is to direct into proper channels the "urge to act," and to prepare the occasional performer in the technique of acting and directing. Under the heading of stage technique, will be presented such fundamentals as voice building, correct breathing, better articulation and enunciation, oral expression, impersonation, interpretation, monologues from plays, pantomime and make-up. Simple stage business will be worked out along logical lines. For the benefit of actor and director, class directing of plays, the work-shop idea, will be stressed. The desires of the members of the group will serve as units of study. The course is free of charge, and any interested person willing to do the work is free to join.

Miss McLane came to the peninsula last year after 12 years experience as a university professor of speech arts, in Colorado. In preparation for her career she received degrees in dramatics and allied subjects from Columbia, Harvard, Boston University, the Emerson College of Oratory in Boston, and Stanford. She has also had European study. Long interested in little theater work, she has also been successful as an organizer of children's theaters. At Colorado State Teachers college in Greeley she successfully established the first children's theater west of the Rockies, assigning to her group of senior students the project of producing plays with children.

In addition to her work in Carmel with the dramatic seminar, Miss McLane is to conduct a children's theater this summer at Holman's solarium in Pacific Grove, opening next Tuesday, June 16.

ROAD UNDER REPAIR

Resurfacing is under way on the Los Gatos-Saratoga highway, beginning at the Los Gatos town limits, reports the San Jose office of the National Automobile Club. About a mile of road will be surfaced from Los Gatos and half-a-mile on the Saratoga end.

Road Along Coast Now Partly Closed

Forty-five miles of a spectacular coastal scenic trip is available over the Big Sur road out of Carmel but motorists are reminded that this route is not available for through travel as construction is still under way beyond Anderson's Landing. The touring bureau of the California State Automobile Association reports that the 32 miles to Big Sur comprise the best part of the trip with work under way at many points beyond. The route is paved to San Remo-Divide; oiled road to Molera's Ranch with careful driving required at widening operations a mile south of Bixby and also beyond Little Sur bridge, where there is drifting sand. Widening operations with rough stretches make the section from six miles south of Big Sur to the closed point at Anderson's Landing not advisable.

RETURNING FROM ORIENT

Frank Wickman, who has been on a tour of the Orient for several weeks is returning to America and will arrive in Victoria, B. C., on the Empress of Japan, July 14. F. W. Newhall will motor north to meet Mr. Wickman and the two will return to their Carmel home.

TO OPEN CARMEL HOME

Miss Mary Lansdale, formerly of San Francisco, now of Philadelphia, is opening her Carmel home for the summer, where she will entertain many San Francisco friends. She arrived in California last week, visiting friends in San Francisco before coming to Carmel.

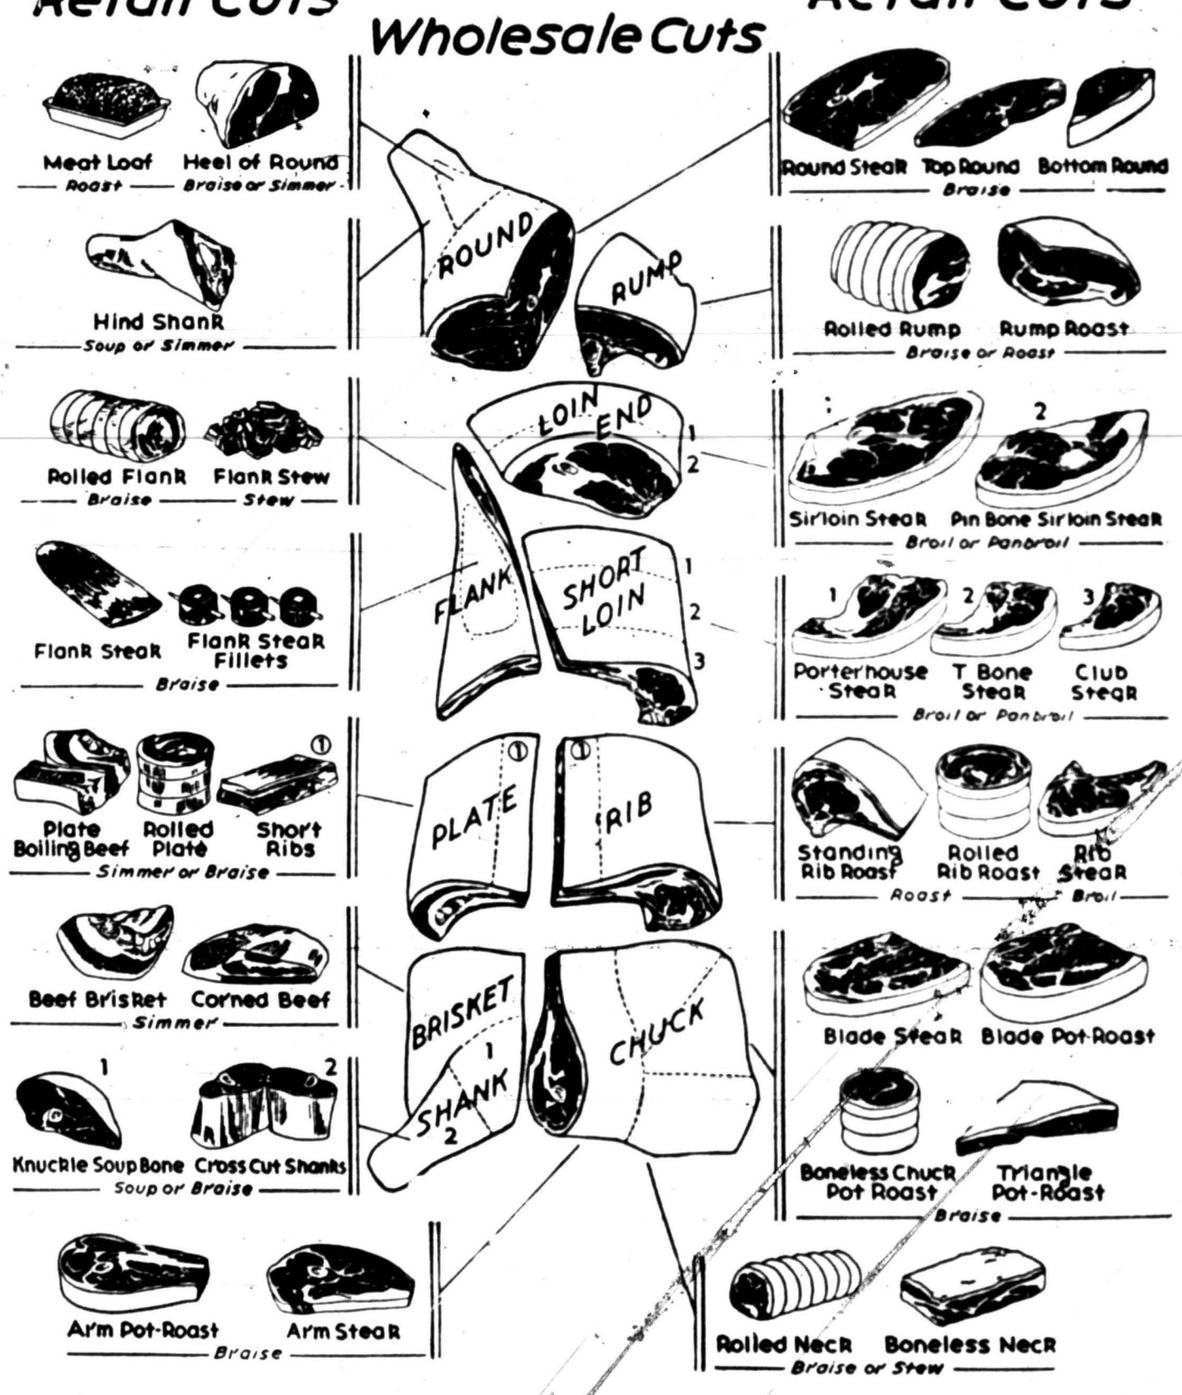
Meat Cuts and How to Cook Them

BEEF CHART



Every housewife is confronted with the three-a-day question of variety in the meals she serves. In beef we become addicted to roasts or steaks and forget all about the other good beef cuts which will give pleasing variation and be easy on the pocketbook, too. Perhaps our trouble lies in the fact that we are not as familiar as we should be with many of the possibilities offered by beef. If you are one of those whose use of beef is limited to a roast or a steak, the chart given above will be invaluable in learning to identify and locate the many retail cuts of beef. The chart will show you at a glance just how each one should be cooked. You will want to preserve this chart for ready reference.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

AUTOGRAPHED copies of two new books have just been received by Laura Maxwell. The books are interesting not only for their own intrinsic value, but because both were in a large part written here.

"Against the Stream," a novel, is by Howard Pfaelzer, who was here all last winter, writing. "Green Mountains to Sierras," charming essays of vagrant ramblings through the national parks, is by Zephine Humphrey, and it is dedicated to our Janet Prentiss. Miss Humphrey is the wife of Walter Fahnestock, the artist, who was here with her, painting, two years ago, when she was working on her book.

Miss Humphrey has four other volumes to her credit, "The Beloved Communities," "Mountain Verities," "Chrysalis" and "Winterwise." All are collections of essays, and have received excellent reviews in such journals as the Philadelphia Public Ledger, the Baltimore Evening Sun, the Boston Herald, and others. Comments on "The Beloved Communities" from the Baltimore Sun serve to point the essential flavour of Miss Humphrey's work: "A book of charm, delicacy and spirituality, with a pleasant sense of humor, deep honesty, and a reverent love of nature and humanity."

Pfaelzer, Fahnestock and Miss Humphrey are all members of the interesting artistic community of Dorsett, Vt., where as well as pursuing their respective art forms, they are active members of the community dramatic group.

AN interesting visitor at Carmel Inn recently was L. R. Child of Portland, an expert on the breeding of sheep for the production of finest quality wool. Now on a leisurely vacation tour of California,—incidentally, Carmel was new to him, and how he exclaimed! He's planning a long vacation here as soon as he can manage it—Mr. Child has just recently returned from Russia, where he spent all last year. His mission was an unusual one; he was in charge of a large shipment of sheep, and as a recognized expert in his line, he was asked to stay on and give instructions on one of the state farms in the care of his particular brand of blooded beasts, for maximum wool production and to maintain the quality of a particularly soft and fine variety of wool.

CARMEL had the honor of a visit last week-end from the author of "Honey in the Horn"; H. L. Davis, winner of both the Harper and Pulitzer prizes. He was down from the north with Robert Shaw, of the Oakland Post-Inquirer staff, and Mrs. Shaw, and visited Lincoln Steffens and Ella Winter.

FOR the past three weeks Hope Williams, the actress, has been a guest of Mrs. Perna Ware, a long-time friend with whom she came west recently. Carmelites who met Miss Williams commented particularly on the strikingly beautiful quality of her voice, which has had much to do with her success on Broadway, together with a discerning intelligence, a beautiful face and figure. She has left for Cody, Wyoming, to spend the summer on her ranch there.

IN A WEEK-END party at Carmel Inn were Ursula Faucit, her sister, Aurora Thompson, Miss M. A. Lucelle and Mrs. Charles O. Kimball, all of the bay region. Miss Faucit is a Shakespearean actress and interpreter of Shakespeare plays and characters, and she gained her grounding in the immortal bard through several years' trouping in the great Sothern-Marlowe company. Following that experience, she created her own act, monologue-sketches from the Shakespeare plays, in which she toured the Orpheum circuit from coast to coast for three years. She now conducts her own school in Ebell hall, in Oakland. Her sister has considerable reputation as a pianist.

Busy Session for Post Office Looms

Carmel post office is preparing for a busy session next week, in connection with the receipt and delivery of Adjusted Service Bonds for veterans of the world war. The bonds are to be mailed from San Francisco on Monday, and will arrive here probably Tuesday or Wednesday, according to Postmaster Irene Cator. They will come by registered mail, a notice of registered mail will be put in the postoffice boxes of adressees, and the bonds may be delivered only to the person to whom they are addressed, after satisfactory identification. Identification will probably not present much of a problem in Carmel, as many of the ex-service men are personally known to the postmaster or her assistants.

Delivery of the bonds will take a certain amount of time, however, and will mean considerable extra work for the postoffice, as there are various forms to be signed. In some cases small checks will be included with the bonds, to take care of odd amounts, less than the face value of the smallest bonds. These, according to Mrs. Cator, may be cashed at once at the postoffice, provided there are not too many of them, as a postoffice of this size does not keep large cash reserves on hand. They may also be cashed at any bank.

The bonds themselves may be forwarded to San Francisco to be cashed. The veteran will receive an interim receipt from the postmaster, pending receipt from San Francisco of a check on the U. S. treasury for the face amount of the bonds.

It is not known definitely how many ex-service men in Carmel are to receive the Adjusted Service Bonds, but early this week a total of 66 of Carmel and vicinity had been fingerprinted for identification purposes at the Carmel police department.

CARMEL CLEANERS

DOLORES STREET CALL 242

PINE PITH, PITCH AND BARK

By ROSS C. MILLER

IN the vernacular of the barroom, "Hell Is Popping" in the liquor industry. What with confessions being made by enforcement agents of the taking of bribes and the clean-up campaign on in Southern California, it looks as though the Board of Equalization is going to have a time putting over its Alcoholic Beverage Control Act this fall which would perpetuate the members in office and double their salaries.

Up in Oakland the other day Liquor Control Officer R. J. McGill testified that he had taken bribes and sold confiscated liquor and stills with the knowledge and consent of the state Board of Equalization, which employed him.

Down in Los Angeles Merle Templeton, energetic new administrator for the county, has swung into action to clean up things. He and Ray Edgar, who appointed him, have put into effect some things which makes interesting reading. It works this way. Templeton organized what he calls a coordinating committee. This committee is composed of prominent citizens, both wets and drys, such as the P-T. A. president, head of the Woman's Club, newspaper editors and leaders of various civic clubs. Then the committee meets with Templeton on set dates to thrash out their city's liquor control problems.

Already some 600 to 700 liquor licenses in Los Angeles county, where the situation has long been bad, have been tabbed for refusal when they come up for renewal July 1. And this will give you some idea of the thoroughness of Templeton's methods: In 90 days he has finger-printed 4000 applicants for licenses, and at his insistence the finger-printing of all applicants was made compulsory. He has sent the prints back to Washington for checking with J. Edgar Hoover's G-men files, and ten per cent of the applicants, found to have criminal records, have been eliminated in this manner. You can judge for yourself how much various Los Angeles politicians appreciate activity of this sort.

THE zero hour is here. The big push is about to begin. Next week hundreds of thousands of soldiers throughout the nation will advance in skirmishing formation—not over a trench top, this time, with some war-scarred hill as their objective, but through peaceful streets to post offices, where the government will be cashing their bonus bonds.

More than a billion and a half dollars will be paid out. In California alone, $122,833,011 will go to 200,424 veterans. How will they spend it, and what effect will it have on us, on business?

An American Legion survey says they'll pay $465,000,000 on old bills and debts, they'll buy $375,000,000 worth of homes, invest $105,000,000 in their own businesses, spend $105,000,000 for clothing, $90,000,000 for home furnishings, $90,000,000 for autos, and the rest for savings accounts, insurance, home equipment, farm equipment and miscellaneous.

What a flood of money! But is it inflationary to the degree that it will force up retail prices on everything we buy? We are assured that any such effect will be minimized because modern retailing methods—volume of big turnover and small profits on each unit—have endowed our price structure with a new stability.

With the price rise bogey routed, there should be an end to objections to this bonus, which the veterans are getting after many weary years of trying. The move has been made. The time for argument is past. We can all welcome the buying, and join in the general rejoicing.

After all, the bonus will spread cheer down deep through the ranks of discouraged men, bringing new hope to hundreds of thousands.

GOOD news comes from two directions this week. Frank Y. McLaughlin, WPA administrator for California, reports that the shrinkage of relief rolls has gone on at an astonishing rate, For the 13th consecutive week they have dropped, the total for the last seven-day period being 3509. The state's relief load is now 158,632, as compared to 300,612 a year ago. The other bright bit comes from Dun & Bradstreets, and predicts that stores and shops throughout the nation will have their biggest month of the year this June. Last week their volume was 12 to 17 per cent over 1935. California's increase was the same as that for the nation. And in Cleveland this week the Republican party is trying to find a way to save the nation.

Since this is political season, we might as well record a couple of political news flashes. One is that new "third party" formed at Bakersfield last week. It is composed of minor liberal parties and those dissatisfied with both of the big ones, and is affiliated with a national group called the American Comonwealth Federation. They hope to be strong enough, by 1940, to run a candidate for president. The other political news flash is about how a San Jose State College election ended with 1500 votes in the ballot boxes, and how somebody later discovered that only 1200 students had voted.

EYESIGHT IS PRICELESS

LIGHT that is safe for grown-up eyes is not always safe for children's eyes. Young eyes are still growing; gaining strength. That is why eyestrain caused by reading or studying in poor light may lead to eye trouble in later years. Proper lighting helps healthy eye development just as proper food builds sturdier bodies.

The new Better Sight lamps give ample, soft, diffused light that promotes comfortable seeing and protects eyesight. Buy one of these better lamps today.

Check up on the lighting in your home. Fill the empty sockets and replace old lamps with new so that you will always have good light when you read or study.

Good light never was so cheap. Lamp bulbs today are twice as efficient—give twice as much light as they did in 1921. And they cost 66% less. Then, too, the Reduced Electric Rates mean Good Lighting is Cheaper than ever before.

Editor The Carmel Pine Cone:

Somehow an erroneous impression has been created in regard to my filing only for the Democratic nomination for Congress. I intend to avail myself of the privilege enjoyed in California by members of all parties during the past 20 years, and will file for the Republican as well as the Democratic nomination.

I have received hundreds of letters from Republicans all over my district asking me to file for that party's nomination, and in response to these requests I shall present the opportunity to any of my constituents to vote for me at the primaries if they so desire.

Cademartori's to Serve Luncheons

Heeding the urgent requests of many peninsula people that they serve luncheons, Cademartori's, Monterey's popular Italian restaurant, opened its doors this week for noonday business.

Cademartori's restaurant is full of the atmosphere of early Spanish days. It is situated in one of the oldest adobe houses in California. It originally belong to Don Florenzo Serrano who was born in Madrid. He was sent here as secretary of state under the Mexican government. He married Rita De La Torre, a member of one of the oldest pioneer families. Her father came to California as a captain in the Spanish army with Father Junipero Serra. In later years Don Florenzo taught school in this same adobe. This was the only school of that time.

This adobe has been under three flags and through five generations. It has always been maintained as a home of the descendants of Don Florenzo Serrano. The present owners are heirs of the late Raphael T. Serrano.

By THELMA B. MILLER

PUPILS of Ruth Austin appeared in an exceptionally interesting dance recital last Saturday afternoon in the Pacific Grove high school auditorium. As is so often the case with our gifted Carmel children, their work showed little of the tentative quality of students, but had a precision and conviction indicating that fine teaching has fallen on fertile ground. Miss Austin has broken with tradition in teaching young pupils, and to a corresponding degree has set them free, creatively and technically. One general impression remains from the whole picture: every gesture, every movement, was carried through vigorously to its logical conclusion, not left timidly in midair. Dancing is an art particularly vulnerable to a lack of certainty, or belief in the thing being done. Even Miss Austin's youngest pupils have cleared a high hurdle, and in the right direction.

The whole program had an agreeable simplicity in costuming and staging, and the warm feeling which comes from entertainers at ease and thoroughly enjoying their own performance.

The opening dances were by the youngest pupils, and even in their work was evidence of unusual freedom and breadth of line. There was a certain continuity, as of a suite, in the "rhythmic studies" which demonstrated the adaptation of bodily motion to clearly defined rhythms. The little maids wore charming "old English" costumes. In this group were Shirley Slipner, Constance David, Elizabeth Klein, Mary Henderson, Nancy Lee Watson, Joan Carr, Cynthia Carr and Charis Johns.

Older grls gave a mazurka, to music by Glinka, in peasant costume, after which three girls detached themselves from the group and gave the most imaginative and beautiful number of the entire program, in my estimation. They were Joan Fauntleroy, Suzanne Watson and Eleanor Johnston. Two charming solo numbers followed, by Mary Jean Elliott and Cynthia Klein, which again showed a definite continuity with the valse in which they were joined by Kraig Short. A spirited tap dance by a larger group, to the music of "The Bowery" concluded the work of the intermediate section, which included, in addition to those already mentioned, Betsy Hunter, Polly Hunter, Ann Whitman, Emma Ann Wishart, Jacquelyn Fauntleroy, Betty Riley, Harriet Hatton, Jean Staniford, Edith Cox, Mary Riley and Dorelee Landon.

The third group was devoted to the work of five older girls, of high school age, and here indeed was evidence of high technical excellence and maturity of conception. Particularly interesting was the dance devised and danced by Roe Marie Mattimore, modern in manner and genuinely beautiful and moving. Babette De Moe gave two solos, a Syrian sword dance and a Hindu dance, in which she was graceful and lovely. Eleanor Johnston, considerably younger and smaller than others in the group, also had a solo number, "Dance Impertinent" in which she was piquant and pretty as a little pink rose. The entire group interpreted a Bach invention in patterns of beauty, and in various groupings they gave three Bagatelles by Tcherepnine, and concluded with two tap numbers. In the advanced group were Patty Lou Elliott, Mary Riley and Carol Bailey, in addition to the soloists. Mary Walker was the able accompanist for the entire program.

THE AMERICAN LEGION ASKS SOME QUESTIONS

At the last meeting of the Carmel American Legion Post, the evening of June 1, The Pine Cone appears to have come in for considerable discussion, in connection with the editorial, "What is Americanism?" in the issue of May 29. It isn't every week that our editorials attract so much attention; we are rather pleased. Byington Ford read it, with comment which we hear was not entirely complimentary. The day of the meeting, we received a registered letter from Mr. Ford, asking us to answer certain questions which at that time we declined to do.

After discussion of the editorial, the legion post approved unanimously the following statement, and repeated the questions, which, since they come from an organization and not from an individual, we are glad to answer, publicly. The statement and questions follow:

> The membership of Carmel Post No. 512 of the American Legion, as is true of Legion posts throughout the United States, consists of men who have rendered service and who have sacrificed for their country; men who come from varying walks of life; men of differing political beliefs and opinions. In joining the American Legion these men have subscribed to principles of American democracy with the feeling that ideals of justice, liberty and American tradition should be maintained and preserved.
> It is not the intention, purpose or practice of the American Legion to interfere with or hamper the normal and natural activities of community life, but rather to lend wholesome assistance and cooperation to those efforts that are desirable and up-building.
> We want the people of Carmel to know that the local Legion post has at no time interfered with or acted in regard to the Peninsula Girl Scout organization, nor has the local post any knowledge of the placing of any so-called spy.
> In view of the stand and policy of Carmel Post No. 512, we courteously request the editor of The Pine Cone to answer the following questions pertaining to intimations in an editorial of the May 29 issue:
> 1. Are you referring to the local post of the American Legion?
> 2. Do you mean that the American Legion Auxiliary is that "certain organization" referred to in your editorial?

This is a fair and frank statement of Legion principles, in which we believe our readers will be as much interested as we are, and with which most of us will heartily concur. It indicates that the time is ripe for clarification of certain misconceptions, adverse to the Legion, which have brought a certain amount of unwarranted opprobrium on the local post. It arises from a lack of clarity as to when Legion officials are acting purely as individuals, and when they are acting for the Legion, presumably with the backing of the post.

Certain members have been very active since the inception of the post here, so active that they go about not in their own persons, but with "American Legion" writ large upon them. Such individuals should be doubly circumspect, not only for their own sakes, but for the sake of the organization they cherish.

The editorial to which the statement refers dealt with the strange story of one Sharkey, or Bakcsy, and with the recent controversy in the ranks of Girl Scout leadership, and the relation of these two incidents with the principles of Americanism. As for the activities of Sharkey, the agent provocateur, whom we firmly believe was here not merely to discover evidence of "subversive activities" but to frame such evidence if he did not discover it normally, it may be just as well to let a little more daylight into that situation.

As for the questions: The answer to the first is "NO." There was no reference, in fact nor in intent, to the local American Legion post. The only mention of American Legion in the editorial was to quote, and praise, an extremely fine statement of American ideals as embodied in a booklet put out by the Americanism committee of the New York County American Legion, which we again recommend to all our readers, including members of the local Legion post.

After deep consideration, and with a certain reluctance, we have come to the conclusion that the kindest possible course is for us to refrain from answering the second question, which arises from this sentence in our editorial of May 29: "Is it American democracy for two women to demand a place on an executive committee because they represent a certain organization?"

The Girl Scout controversy has been harmoniously reconciled: it would be unwise, unkind and unnecessary to attempt to revive it. To do so would only be an added embarrassment to the individuals involved—and it is a case of individual, not organizational involvement. This question was put by the Legion on behalf of the Auxiliary. If the Auxiliary wishes to put the question on its own behalf, we will answer it, fully, with due regret for the personalities which will necessarily be involved. It may be sufficient to say that we know that the American Legion Auxiliary never took official cognizance of actions of certain individuals in the Auxiliary which precipitated the Girl Scout controversy.

Having answered the question of the Legion, we now have some questions to propound in return, not to the Post, but to Byington Ford, the commander. We believe that his answers will be of interest not only to us, but to members of the Legion and to the community as a whole.

Mr. Ford, are you careful to make the distinction quite clear when you are acting as a private citizen, and when you are acting as the commander of the Carmel Legion Post? A certain confusion arose about a year ago, you will remember, in connection with an attempt to drive certain publications off the Carmel newsstands, to the unmerited discredit of the American Legion.

Were you cognizant of Sharkey's activities here?

Did you assist Sharkey in an attempt to spy upon Carmel citizens believed to be engaged in radical conspiratorial activities, and did you operate a dictaphone with him? Were you in contact with the Waterfront Employers' Association of San Francisco in connection with his mission here? Were you in contact, as a private citizen or as Legion commander, with the American Legion's state committee on subversive activities in connection with Sharkey's activities here?

If you did have such contacts, were you not yourself, as commander of the Legion, unfairly involving the local post in a situation of which it was completely in the dark, as is evident in its statement to The Pine Cone?

Does the local chairman of subversive activities make regular reports to the Legion membership so that they can be sure his activities are such as they can sanction? What connection did he have with Sharkey, and what "evidence," if any, was discovered of radical conspiratorial activity in Carmel? If there is such activity, it is in the interest of the general public to know the full facts. If there was no evidence discovered, that, also, is news.

* * * *

Since the inception of the American Legion, founded to perpetuate the deep and intimate associations of the War, we have been in contact with numerous Legion posts, in several communities in California and in other states. We have known the organization as one where good fellowship reigns supreme; an organization always to the fore in sponsoring worthwhile community enterprises, inculcating patriotism through contacts with youth, taking the initiative in celebrating national holidays. We have known it as an organization responsible for much fine welfare work, particularly with unfortunates maimed, widowed or orphaned by the war. We have also seen the local situation duplicated: an excess of zeal and lack of wise judgment on the part of individuals bringing undeserved discredit on the entire post

There is a situation here which it is in the province of members of the post to correct. From the statement herewith published at the request of the post members, we believe that they have the will to do so.

THE VOTERS SPEAK

Sunset school district spoke in no uncertain voice in electing Donald Hale to the position of school trustee. A decisive victory leaves no doubt as to the minds of the voters; the size of the vote cast here, a total well over 700, indicates the deep interest which residents of the district take in all school affairs.

For the remainder of the fiscal year, the school board will have the advantage of the wise counsel and four year's experience of E. H. Ewig, the retiring member of the board. A fortunate provision in the revised school law which changed the trustee election from March to June, also provides for new members to take office after all the difficult end-of-the-year business has been transacted, such as teacher selection and outlining of the budget.

To Mr. Hale; hearty congratulations for the testimony of friendship and confidence he received in the election. To Sunset school district: congratulations on a fine trustee, an active business man whose counsels will be welcome, and a friend of the school who will be concerned with maintaining its present high standards.

THE SUNSET SCHOOL EDITION

Copies of last week's Sunset school edition of The Pine Cone are at a premium, and have been ever since the paper appeared on the street last Friday morning. We have difficulty in keeping even one office checking copy on hand. The press run was increased for this special number, but not enough. We underestimated the demand for this most amusing and valuable compendium of local news by the children of Sunset school.

If the work of the school children on The Pine Cone were compared with the average issue of the average weekly newspaper, the former would not suffer, by literary or other standards. The added attraction is the freshness and zest, the touches of humor, the clever art work, the well-organized efficiency of a large group, which made it easy and a pleasure for The Pine Cone management to work with the boys and girls.

We wish to extend thanks to Principal Otto W. Bardarson, to Miss Anna Marie Baer, who again supervised the work of the students this year, to Larry McLaren, Bernard Rosenblatt, Max Hagemeyer and Dorothy Smith, who assumed responsibility on behalf of the students, and to the many boys and girls who contributed, for an exceptionally fine journalistic product.

SCOUTING AND LOYALTY

A general clearing of the atmosphere has followed the solution of the very unfortunate situation which followed the resignation of the entire Girl Scout leadership personnel in Carmel, as a demonstration of loyalty to Mrs. Ralph Coote. It was a gracious act on Mrs. Coote's part to resume the position of Scout Commissioner, which involves considerable work, demands considerable time and attention, and which heretofore has brought to her a quite unmerited and unnecessary amount of worry and unpleasantness. The manner in which the entire peninsula Scout organization has rallied to her support augurs well for the future of the Girl Scout program. One of the foremost principles of Scouting is loyalty, and that the leaders have demonstrated to the full.

Scout leadership in Carmel is in the hands of a fine group of women, who have proved the depth of their interest by the long and faithful service which many of them have given to the work of the organization. They have worked, and are working, without ulterior motive or for self-glorification, but altruistically, for the sake of the girls. They are assuming an obligation which all of us should feel jointly, and they have the gratitude of the community whose work they are doing as individuals, through a fine organization.

Legion's Policy on Education Set Forth in Resolution Prepared by Southern Post

AT the request of Byington Ford, commander of Carmel Post No. 512, American Legion, a resolution prepared by Schoolmasters' Post No. 448, having the approval of the Seventeenth District and the Los Angeles county council of the American Legion, is herewith published in full, as an excellent statement of the Legion's policy on education. The resolution was presented at the last department executive committee meeting and while hasty adjournment kept it from reaching the floor, it was approved by the resolutions committee. The executive committee of the Carmel post has endorsed the resolution, according to Mr. Ford.

In a letter accompanying the resolution, Mr. Ford states:

"Since there seems to be some misunderstanding locally as to the aims, purposes and beliefs of the American Legion in general and Carmel Post particularly, might we ask you to give proper space to this resolution in the columns of The Pine Cone.

"Also from time to time, we should like to give you other statements of policy of the American Legion such as the Legion's program for the prevention of war. We believe these articles will be of interest to your readers and further believe that these statements of fact will do much to clear up any misunderstanding as to the aims and purposes of the American Legion."

The resolution and statement of policy follows:

WHEREAS, education, and especially education for worthy citizenship, is a first essential of the American Legion program, and

WHEREAS, there has been considerable divergence of opinion as to what should be considered the proper contribution of public school education toward training American youth for intelligent citizenship, and

WHEREAS, there is need for a definite statement in this regard,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Seventeenth District of the American Legion, Department of California, in regular session, April 17, 1936, does hereby adopt as a statement of policy the following Charter for an Americanism program in the public schools:

1. The American Legion and the American public schools are committed to the perpetuation and improvement of American democracy as a way of living.

2. The democratic ideal is based upon the principle of the Golden Rule. It implies respect for individual personality; it requires that each individual contribute to the common good to the extent of his capacity and that each benefit to the extent of at least minimum security; its most basic consideration is the welfare of all people: it implies a "government of the people, by the people, and for the people,' which provides "liberty and justice for all."

3. Democracy depends upon an informed and intelligent citizenry: democracy depends, also, upon a citizenry with a healthy, wholesome outlook on life. The public school is one of democracy's major instruments for enlightening its people and for promoting normal attitudes on the part of all citizens.

4. Every pupil attending the public schools has the right to a true and complete picture of:

(a) The development of the American democratic ideal in this country; the American Revolution and the government which was set up following it, with emphasis upon the new social values stressed in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. This study should lead to the understanding of and loyalty to those democratic ideals and values, along with the development of individual responsibilities of citizenship. This should involve a willingness to abide by existing laws and to make needed changes through democratc procedures.

(b) A study of modern life, covering not only America's advantages, opportunities, rights, achievements, and glories, but, also, her problems, maladjustments, and other influences which make genuine democracy difficult.

(c) The various proposals and possibilities for solving the problems and correcting the maladjustments of American life toward the improvement of democracy.

5. The social studies teacher, who is largely responsible for the promotion of a sane Americanism program in the schools, is entitled to reasonable safeguards. In return, he is under obligation to observe those principles of fair practice and judicial restraint which are desirable in the public school classroom in a democracy.

6. In studying controversial issues, teachers and pupils should exercise care in utilizing scientific methods of gathering all available data, weighing evidence, drawing tentative conclusions based upon the evidence, and a consideration of new evidence when it is presented. The intensive study of highly controversial and complex problems does not seem appropriate below the upper grades of the senior high school.

7. The problems, conflicts, maladjustments of American life, the proposals for improving it, and the study of governments in other countries should be considered in the light of the democratic principles enunciated in the Preamble of the American Constitution.

8. Pupils should be afforded opportunities to participate in the activities of the school and the community, thereby securing valuable training in exercising the rights and in performing the responsibilities of school and community citizenship.

9. The Amercan Legion advocates that American boys and girls attending American public schools have the right to an American education under the leadership of teachers who believe in and subscribe to American democratic principles.

First Run Film Is Filmarte Fare

This week-end Filmarte-goers will see two "sure fire" entertainments. Tonight, Saturday, and the first half of Sunday's double bill will show "Barbary Coast," ably written for the screen by Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht. This story of early San Francisco has proved gripping and appealing. The principal actors, Edward G. Robinson, Joel McCrae and Miriam Hopkins, are well known for their ability. This is a first-run film in Carmel.

The 9 o'clock program on Sunday brings the first showing of "Next Time We Love," with Margaret Sullavan and James Stewart. This charming film depicting the trying, yet amusing tribulations arising from different careers in marriage, will run two more nights, Monday and Tuesday. The management feels that the audiences will agree that this film should have been called "Next Time We Live." The title no doubt got twisted in the shuffle among the erotic minded "Kings of the Industry" and their henchmen!

Two foreign film nights, Wednesday and Thursday have been displaced by an unusual treat. At this time the Federal Theatre of San Francisco is sending two marionette shows to the Filmarte which have just amused and charmed the city audiences. "The Crock of Gold," by James Stevens, on Wednesday, matinee and evening; and "Alice in Wonderland" on Thursday night. These are the well known Ralph Chesse marionettes, and among the troup of puppeteers is Blanche Tolmie, whose many friends in Carmel will be happy to see her again.

The delightful Irish tale of the "Crock of Gold," with its Leprachauns and the sprightly Pan, should lend itself excellently to puppetry, while every child on the peninsula will find the Lewis Carrol classic with the "White Rabbit," the Red Queen, prim little Alice and many others in the tale irresistibly appealing to their parents as well as to themselves.

MEDALS FOR SWIMMERS

Last Wednesday, June 10, at M. U. H. S., chosen members of the boys' swimming team were issued medals for winning events in the recent swimming meets against Pacific Grove and Balboa high schools. The winners from Carmel are John Logan, Kent Clark, Pearson Menoher, Frear Gottfried, Harlan Wilder and Tommy Philips.
